TERMITE PROOFING

Termite often called as the “silent destroyer” can cause havoc to your precious items in the buildings, structures and lawns. Termites are generally found everywhere in the world and well known for their destructive capabilities. The termite may be secretly hiding and thriving in the homes and yards without any apparent signs of damage. The presence of termites indoor generally requires professional treatment to avoid damage to the house or structure. Timely preventive measures are essential to eradicate the menace of termite before it starts creating the damage.

FUMIGATION

Fumigation is a method of pest control that completely fills an area with gaseous pesticides to suffocate or poison the pests within. It is utilized for control of pests in buildings and is also used during processing of goods to be imported or exported to prevent transfer of exotic organisms.

TERMITE PROOFING

PRE-CONSTRUCTION

Termite pre-treatment to new structures is one of the things that everybody should do. It is so cheap, and so effective, when you compare it to post construction treatments, but you'd be surprised as to how few buildings are actually pre-treated. Wise and savvy architects always specify pre-treatment, knowledgeable builders include it in every structure they erect, and prospective buyers should demand it for any new house they buy or build. Pre-treatment is far better than post treatment. Post treatment (after you get termites) is actually a "spot" treatment. You can drill a thousand holes, but there will still be places you can't reach, no matter how hard the exterminator tries. With a proper pre-treatment, the soil next to the foundations is treated with a termiticide and is sealed in after the foundations are in place. The best time to provide protection against termites is during the planning and construction phase of a structure. The major objective of Eastern Services is to establish a chemical barrier between the soil, where termites live and the wood in the home. A thorough pre-construction treatment is needed to protect the structure from termites. In pre-termite proofing 2-3 phases required. Pre-construction termite treatment can be done in following phases:-

PRE-CONSTRUCTION TERMITE TREATMENT CAN BE DONE IN FOLLOWING PHASES:

- FOUNDATION
- PIPING
- FLOORING
- WOOD WORKING

TERMITE PROOFING

POST-CONSTRUCTION

An Eastern Services Specialist will perform a thorough examination of your home by checking your basement or crawlspace for moisture, your foundation for wood debris, and other risk areas that may attract an infestation. Eastern Services utilizes state-of-the-art equipment such as IR thermometers, moisture meters, and termite detection systems to help him scientifically assess your home. When we are done, you will receive our recommendation, complete with customized digital diagrams and an Eastern Services Inspection Report outlining problems we identified, as well as recommended plan to protect your home from termites.

- INSPECTION
- IDENTIFYING ACTIVITY
- FORMULATING A TREATMENT PLAN
- COMMUNICATING TREATMENT
- PERFORMING THE TREATMENT
- QUALITY CONTROL FOLLOW-UP

BAIT SYSTEM

This treatment disrupts termite moulting processes, stunting their growth, and is applied to areas at most risk of attracting the pests like moist soil or mulch and old tree stumps. Bait System provides continual protection without causing damage to your property. After service is completed, Eastern Services will fill out a Termite Control Service Ticket that explains exactly what was done and when he'll be back to monitor the progress of treatments. Baits/monitoring systems may be used for post-construction termite control. They do not create a barrier around the structure, as do the liquid insecticides discussed earlier.
